A: In my experience, WordPad is the least capable and the most rudimentary word processor. Word is OK, but if you want it to be capable enough to compete with more modern options, you need to get your hands dirty and start coding. That's not a difficult process, but it is a steep learning curve. There are other options, such as OpenOffice or Microsoft Office itself. A: KompoZer is a very good and simple to use free text editor. It has the most features that I've ever seen in a text editor with no extravagant graphics. It's free, cross-platform (even Linux), very responsive and has an easy-to-use interface. You can find it at the metapackage(s) dependency cpufrequtils-nbsd: hggdh: ah right cpufrequtils-nbsd: Depends: libkexec-tools:i386 (>= 2.0.0+dfsg-1) but it is not going to be installed hggdh: in my opinion, the package provides the kexec-tools package, but the dependency is not adding it ah, thats right, it does sorry, my bad hggdh: so in my mind, we should remove libkexec-tools from the dependency and add a Depends on kexec-tools to libkexec-tools, i mean nacc: yes, I believe you are right hggdh: i'll do that in a bit, still getting my net back up hggdh: thanks for the support btw hggdh: LP just shows nothing -- although my request for a code review is on hold nacc: welcome. So far I have been lucky
